

Letters to the Editorial Board

Dear Colleague Odisho:

I thank you for your letter of August 15, 1989 which I received in October because I was in Helsinki as a guest professor of the University.

I received two issues of the Journal of the Assyrian Academic Society. Presently, I am preparing an article on the Georgian and Russian words in the dialects of Modern Assyrian in Georgia/USSR.

Dear Edward, I always remember our meeting in Baghdad in 1970. Since then we have both changed. I am glad that you have made many interesting contributions to Semitic linguistics. As for me, I will be 70 years old in February 1991, but I still work hard as before. I am now Chairman of the Department of Semitic Studies of the Oriental Institute of the Georgian Academy and I am also a member of the Academy. At the same time, I am a professor at Tbilisi University.

*With friendly greetings,
yours,*

Konstantin Tsereteli
